1. It appears that "staked" on line 15 of page 2 should be changed to "stacked".

2. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

3. Claims 1-4 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over the admitted prior art as set forth at page 2, lines 1-16 of the specification. The admitted prior art teaches or suggests the basic claimed method of forming a RIM mold including (1) machining a material that is easily subjected to NC machining so that a skin material with a base for a product is prepared using skin data on the product, (2) preparing an outer frame around the machined skin material and positioning epoxy on the machined skin to prepare a lower mold, (3) releasing and inverting the lower mold after the epoxy has been completely cured, and performing NC machining on the released portion of the lower mold to prepare a thickness-defining portion on the inverted lower mold using one of wax or resin by means of machining for the thickness of the product, bosses and a rim, (4) preparing an upper mold by positioning epoxy on the machined surface wherein a thickness-forming portion is formed, and (5) removing the thickness-forming portion to thereby form a RIM mold. The admitted prior art teaches stacking of epoxy, but positioning epoxy by pouring, as in claims 1, 3 and 4 is also well known and would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art in order to place the epoxy in a desired location.

Art Unit: 1732

While the admitted prior art teaches the forming of a model or mock-up from plywood, use of polystyrene for such purpose, as in claim 2, is also well known and would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art since it is also easily shaped. The admitted prior art illustrates epoxy in a horizontal state, as in claims 3 and 4, and it is submitted that poured epoxy would inherently cause the immersions of claims 3 and 4.

4. Applicant's arguments filed November 2, 2006 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Applicant's arguments are considered to be moot by the examiner based on the revised ground of rejection introduced in this Office action.

5. Any inquiry concerning this communication or earlier communications from the examiner should be directed to Allan Kuhns whose telephone number is (571) 272-1202. The examiner can normally be reached on Monday to Thursday from 7:00 to 5:30.
